Classics is the study of the cultures of the ancient Greeks and Romans and the people they directly affected. Its major subfields include the Greek and Latin languages from the earliest records until the Middle Ages; the literary and philosophical works composed in these languages; Greek and Roman art, architecture, science and technology; Greek and Roman political and social institutions such as religious beliefs and practices, laws and legal procedures, the organization of states, the conduct of warfare, and expressions of gender, sexuality, age, and class; and the recovery, evaluation, and preservation of the material remains of Greek and Roman culture, including writing inscribed in stone or metal or on papyrus and other paper-like media.

The minor in Latin requires 15 hours at or above the 2000 level with at least 1 course (3 hours) at the 5000 level.

Once the Department Undergraduate Director has approved the Minor Program Form, students should file the form with the College of Arts and Sciences Advising and Academic Services. For further information about the minor program, contact the Department of Greek and Latin.
