Globalization is the process of countries, through increasing contact, communication and trade, coming closer together to create a single global system in which developments in one part of the world can profoundly affect individuals or communities in other parts of it.

The globalization studies minor gives students an interdisciplinary perspective on the forms that globalization takes, the forces that shape them, and their consequences for the life chances of individuals and communities worldwide, as well as for the global system itself.

The globalization studies minor consists of 15 credit hours. You must take International Studies 3850 and Comparative Studies 3360, the required core courses, and receive a grade of C- or higher before you can declare the minor. To declare the minor, you will meet with an International Studies advisor and plan your minor program. The minor course work is listed below: take one course from the Arts & Humanities group, one course from the Social Sciences group; the third course can come from either one of these groups. After International Studies has approved your minor program, you must file the form with your college office.

*Some courses in this minor may have pre-requisites. Please consult the course bulletin before enrolling in courses.
