Overview
Atmospheric Sciences encompasses all aspects of the study of weather and climate. It includes severe storms and other systems that comprise our day-to-day weather. It also includes processes that create and change the Earth’s climate. Atmospheric scientists work on scales that vary from local weather at the surface to global features of weather and climate.

Minor Requirements
The minor in Atmospheric Sciences requires a minimum of 14 credit hours. All students must take either Atmospheric Sciences 2940 or Geography 5900. Students must choose an additional four elective courses (11-12 credit hours) from a list of courses in Atmospheric Sciences and Geography. Some courses in this minor have prerequisites (which do not count toward minor hours); please consult the course bulletin and/or the geography advisor before enrolling in courses. Students should meet with the Department of Geography’s undergraduate advisor to determine a program.
